COP21 PARIS AGREEMENT AND THE CARBON MARKETS With 177 countries now having signed the Paris Agreement agreed by 195 countries at COP21 in December 2015, the hard work starts now. And while it may not have been so apparent at the outset, the pact charts a clear path for the resurgence of carbon markets, which may help countries achieve their Nationally Determined Contributions (NDCs) and the nations of the world to collectively keep the global temperature rise below 2°C. The Green Business Guide, 6 July 2016.

DEVELOPING NATIONS TO GET "TAILOR-MADE" ADVICE ON CLIMATE ACTION For developing countries seeking to turn their national climate action plans into reality, help will soon be at hand in the form of a support service announced by the German government and the U.S.-based World Resources Institute this week. Megan Rowling, Sharenet, 6 July 2016.

SA RISES IN GLOBAL INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY RANKINGS SA has climbed 10 places to be ranked 65th in the latest global information technology report by the World Economic Forum (WEF). BDLive, 6 July 2016.

ECONOMIC GROWTH & SAVINGS Nearly half (49%) of South African households are saving less than they were a year ago. This is one of the key findings of the latest Old Mutual Savings and Investment Monitor, which tracks the shifts in the financial attitudes and behaviour of South Africa's working metropolitan population. This is the lowest savings level reported since the inaugural 2009 monitor, when households were recovering from the financial turmoil that took place in 2008. Rian Le Roux, Cover, 6 July 2016.

CLIMATE CHANGE RESPONSE REQUIRES FINANCE, COOPERATION AND PARTICIPATION Success tackling climate change and achieving sustainable development in Africa will take finance, cooperation and real engagement with non-state actors, participants heard in high-level sessions that wrapped up this year's Africa Carbon Forum. Tralac, 5 July 2016.

SOUTH AFRICA NEEDS A RE-ENGINEERED APPROACH TO GROWTH Adjusting South Africa's monetary policy would not be enough to dig the nation out of its economic slump, and the country's economy would need to be re-engineered, said National Treasury director-general Lungisa Fuzile on Tuesday. Natasha Odendaal, Engineering News, 5 July 2016.

UNISA IS NOT LETTING ENERGY GO TO WASTE South Africa's Nine-Point Plan places the resolution of the energy challenge at the top of the list of actions in our country. As an academic institution, Unisa is aware of its critical role in ensuring this challenge is met, and, through the Exxaro Chair in Business and Climate Change (Exxaro Chair), and together with the South African National Energy Development Institute (SANEDI) and the University of Fort Hare (UFH), is rolling out biogas as a renewable and sustainable source of energy. Unisa Online, 5 July 2016.

A LOW CARBON FUTURE – MEANING OF CARBON TAX AND OFFSETS The key question for South Africa is how will it be done, and how we ensure it that it does not hurt the economy, nor the poor. The Green Business Guide, 4 July 2016.

BELOW 2°C CARBON BUDGET MIGHT BE REACHED BY 2030 According to a new assessment, individual country pledges to reduce greenhouse gas emissions would need to be strengthened in order to limit future climate change to well below the 2°C limit included in the Paris climate agreement. BizCommunity, 1 July 2016.
