NBI Welcomes New Co-Chair for Advisory Committee for Environment and Society (ACES)

We are excited to announce that Dr Lerato Khumalo has been nominated as the new co-chair for the National Business Initiative's (NBI) Advisory Committee for Environment and Society (ACES).

ACES is one of NBI's three main engagement channels and serves as the key advisory body to the NBI's Environment & Society Unit.

We recognise the importance for business to stay informed and engaged on the country's socio-economic and environmental challenges, including the Just Transition to a net zero carbon economy by 2050.

ACES is a platform where these topics are discussed, with a focus on the business case, and presents an opportunity for members to contribute to the design and implementation of collective strategies to address systemic challenges.

Dr Khumalo has over 16 years of experience and expertise in the environmental management field and is a Senior Associate for Climate Strategy at Exxaro. She currently serves as the Co-Vice Chairperson for the Industry Task Team on Climate Change (ITTCC).

In addition, she is a member of the Energy Council Just Transition Workstream, Business Unity South Africa (BUSA) Climate Change Technical Working Group and the NBI, BUSA & BCG Just Transition Pathways Project Mining Sector Technical Working Group.

We thank Dr Khumalo for accepting the ACES co-chair position and look forward to all the important work we will continue to do together.
